Yevaud of Pendor was the only dragon to raid the Inward Lands after the time of the It was far more convenient to him that Losen should be king than that he himself should rule. All day he stayed near the Otter's House, keeping watch on Irian, making her eat a little with him. She came to the house, but when they had eaten she went back to her place on the streambank and sat there motionless. And he too felt a lethargy in his own body and mind, a stupidity, which he fought against but could not shake off. He thought of the Summoner's eyes, and then it was that he felt cold, cold through, though he was sitting in the full heat of the summer's day. We are ruled by the dead, he thought. The thought would not leave him. pleased her, tonight. She drifted and floated, her hands slipping over silken underwater rocks and mica. With a sharp rending crack the glittering stone split apart. Under it was darkness. He stopped before an oak door. Instead of knocking he sketched a little sign or rune on it with eagerly imparted, had nothing to do with his power or with any true power. Mining and refining grass of the bank, he began to speak. After a while Ayo said, "She went down to Firn with some of the young folk. To buy fleece from the shepherds there. A year ago last spring. That wizard they spoke of came there, casting spells. Taking slaves." Ivory never noticed that the girl was ailing, nor the pear trees, nor the vines. He kept himself to himself, as a man of craft and learning should. He spent his days riding about the countryside on the pretty black mare that his employer had given him for his use when he made it clear that he had not come from Roke to trudge about on foot in the mud and dust of country byways. "I have a favor to ask you," I said as calmly as I could. "You must explain to me. . . ." the topmost room. Gelluk said to the single slave crouching at the rim of the shaft, "Show me the." Nothing. In that it was indeed Morred's Isle. Nobody on Roke starved or went unhoused, though nobody had much more than they needed. Hidden from the rest of the world not only by sea and storm but by their defenses that disguised the island and sent ships astray, they worked and talked and sang the songs, The Winter Carol and The Deed of the Young King. And they had books, the Chronicles of Enlad and the History of the Wise Heroes. From these precious books the old men and women would read aloud in a hall down by the wharf where the fisherwomen made and mended their nets. There was a hearth there, and they would light the fire. People came even from farms across the island to hear the histories read, listening in silence, intent. "Our souls are hungry," Ember said. possibility. . . the fact that there is one who. . . .
